To the Justice Department:

The immeasurably-beneficial world of the computer and its infinite potential for saving this wondrous planet is too precious to be left to Microsoft--as well-intentioned as the latter may plead.

The sheer, growing monopolistic aspect of Microsoft must be mightily and profoundly curbed--forced if necessary to allow the free and nurtured "competition"--for lack of a better phrase--of other minds and souls to flourish.

With all conviction and sincerity,

Bill Bryan, Paso Robles, California
